

"Hepatitis C, which is a preventable, curable disease, kills more people in the United States than any other infectious disease, including HIV and tuberculosis. With an estimated 2.3 million people living with hepatitis C, we can and must do a better job responding to this public health threat."

- Ronald O. Valdiserri MD, MPH

Hepatitis Awareness Month

May 2019

www.emorycamp.org

